

CONTENTS

Foreword	x
Recovery Without a Reckoning	1
Good Wars, Bad Wars, and Afghanistan	6
Deep Breath, Democrats, Change Takes Time and Work	9
Wall Street Paints a Target on Main Street’s Back	14
The Hurt Locker : Hollywood’s Unsettling View of the Iraq War	17
“Government Take-Over” of Healthcare? We Already Have a Corporate Take-Over	21
Where is the Vatican’s Outrage about Child Molestation?	23
A Mosque at Ground Zero: Desperately Seeking George Washington’s Wisdom	28
How Democrats Can Harness the Public Anger (and Madness) for November	33
Hope for Reversing America’s Decline: The Millennial Generation	40
Is This a Culture That Wants to Save Itself?	44
Define “Change”—or It’s Perpetual Pendulum for America	47
For Wall Street: A Loyalty Oath—to Main Street	50
Sputnik II: Relearn the Love of Learning—Now	53
Violent Anti-Government Rhetoric Has a Target: Politicians	58
The Dignity Revolutions in Tunisia, Egypt—and America?	61
Fall of Spider-Man Director is Not “Stuff of Greek Drama”	65

Republicans on Torture Post-Osama bin Laden: Defending Against Prosecution?	67
The Mogul and the Maid: A Shift in Power	71
Self-Criticism: A New Habit of Mind	74
Fat Cat Pledge: “I Will Pay Higher Taxes”	77
Critics and Other Cultural Gatekeepers: Mind the Gate!	80
My Republican Mother Gives the Thumbs-Up to Occupy Wall Street	82
Lost Airmen of Buchenwald : Lost Tale, Finally Told	86
Wall Street: Brush Up Your Melville	89
What Next, Occupy? Revise Gordon Gekko	93
Why Can’t Art Be Instructive?	96
Humor: There’s Funny—and There’s Symptom of Decline	99
A War’s Premise Must Justify the Troops’ Suffering	103
Wisława Szymborska, Nobel Poet: An Appreciation	106
Let’s Just Say It: As Opposition, the Republicans Are Not Loyal	110
Not All of Us Were Mad Men	113
In Clybourne Park , President Obama Would Be an Impossibility	116
A Great Speech About Why America Isn’t Great Anymore (But Can Be Again)	120
Needed: Eliot Ness, Bank Regulator	123
Finally, the Democrats Learn How to Fight	128
The Republicans’ No-Apology Tour	133
Beware Theater in Politics	136
Exceptional Nations Don’t Need to Bluster	141
Crib Sheet for the Undecided Voter	145
This Time, Democrats Need to Keep Control of the Narrative	151
The Tragedy of Mitt Romney	155
Notes on London Theater	159

My Republican Mother Says Yes to Gun Control	168
The Children Are Watching Us	171
Matthew Crawley of Downton Abbey : Moral Hero	175
Society Instructs Hollywood on “Moral Ambiguity” of Torture (or What the Zero Dark Thirty Controversy Means)	179
Memo to Mr. Scorsese: Women Are Heroes, Too.	187
Get Thee to Geneva, Mr. Obama: Your Drone Strikes Make Targets of Us All	194

* * *

Books for Our Times: Review Essays

The Unwinding , by George Packer	201
Why Nations Fail , by Daron Acemoglu and James A. Robinson	206
Capital , by John Lanchester (a novel)	212
This Town , by Mark Leibovich	219

* * *

Obama’s Principled “Red Line” on Syria (Which, By the Way, Worked)	225
Hatred: The Republicans’ Core Problem	230
Dear Banks: “Giving Back” in Philanthropy is Fine, But Also Give Us Back a Financial System We Can Trust	234
Book Review: The Italian-American Experience— Another Immigrant Story	237
The Power of Moral Action and “Breaking Good”: Nelson Mandela and Pope Francis	240
Memo to Robert Gates: Duty, Sir, Lies in Getting a War’s Premise Right	244
Dear Boeing: Next Time, Try Benevolence	247
Why President Obama Should Have Prosecuted the Bush Administration for War Crimes—and Still Can (By Other Means)	254

Distinguishing Between Can and Should: What a Superpower Should Be Able to Do	259
America Can Still Lead the World—with Coalitions Abroad and by Getting Our Own House in Order	265
Soccer’s Teamwork: Something That Works (When So Much Doesn’t)	270
Immigration Reform: Go Incrementally, Mr. Obama, and Go Before November.	273
A Critic, a Play, and Do-It-Yourself Abortion.	278
Democrats Are “Disgusted” with Politics? Boo Hoo.	281
Madam Secretary : A Reflection of “Deep” Washington.	286
Torture Report: America Conducts a Moral Reckoning. Next, Moral Repair?	290
Free Speech vs. Responsible Speech: We Need to Talk, Again	300
Behemoth in a Bathrobe: A Dialogue.	307
End-Essay: Can America Save Itself from Decline?	311
I. The Question	311
II. America’s political suicide.	314
III. America’s economic and financial suicide	316
IV. America’s cultural and moral suicide.	317
V. Recovering our moral voice and compass.	322
VI. “The moral obligation to be intelligent”	326
VII. Appealing to the conscientious public—again	327
VIII. Honoring America’s foundational ideals— and reversing our decline.	329

APPENDIX

“Risk Management, According to Moby-Dick ”	335
My letter to the Editor of The (Tacoma) News Tribune	342
My letter to the Editor of The Seattle Times	343